Subject: Air quality

Dear mayor and council,

If you are wondering why the air in the valley is a bit hazy today, I have the answer. The asphalt plant is running full on today for the Callaghan repaving section.

If you want to have an idea of what it looks like live, not from a missituated air monitor and air quality averaged over a 24 hour period, take a drive down to Callaghan transfer station and look east from there you can see the whole valley. That will give you a better perception of the impact the asphalt plant and quarry might have on the health of the citizens, friends, coworkers and electors of Whistler.

Next time you make a decision about other people's life and health maybe you should do a reality check first.

Have a nice day...
